

William Butler

William (Bill) Butler is an experienced building materials executive and resource developer with over 26 years of general and project management, permitting and entitlement experience. Bill is currently an independent consultant providing guidance and services in resource evaluation and development, marketing analysis, land use consulting, permitting and entitlements. For the past twelve years, Bill served as Vice President and General Manager of the San Francisco Bay Area region for Hanson Aggregates, part of the Heidelberg Cement Group. In this role, Bill managed multiple aggregate, readymix concrete, hot mix asphalt, dredging and distribution terminal operations with key market positions in the Bay Area.

Bill earned his Bachelor of Science degree in Mining Engineering from the Colorado School of Mines. He completed the Stanford Executive Leadership Course in 2000. Bill is currently on the Executive Committee and Board of Directors of the Bay Planning Coalition, and received Bay Planning Coalition's Member of the Year award in 2004. Bill is a member of the California Construction and Industrial Materials Association (CALCIMA), and has served as chair of the Communications Committee. Bill is the past Chairman of the Construction Materials Association of California. He also sits on the Port of San Francisco's Maritime Commerce Advisory Council and is active on their Marketing, Public Affairs and Outreach Committee.